Customer Satisfaction Performance Dashboard
Monthly Summary – August 2010

Report Date: September 3, 2010

Introduction: This report provides a summary of key performance indicators (KPI's) from the weekly Comment Card and the customer satisfaction measures from the Integration Performance Measures. The comment card report's key indicators provide lead indicators that help to understand the future performance of key processes. There are five key indicators out of the eight questions on the comment card. Two of these are also part of the integration performance measures. There are nine integration performance measures, four of which relate to customer satisfaction and two of the four overlap with the comment card key indicators.

Lag, Current and Lead: This report is made up of lag and lead key performance indicators (KPI's). Financial results, such as last quarter's revenue, are typically lagged by 2+ months. Annual results, especially fiscal year results, can be much more delayed. With such lags the problem arises as to what action might be appropriate to alter the direction of the organization's performance when the KPIs are measuring results in the past.

A correction may be inappropriate when the current performance has already significantly altered from that measured some time ago and may result in overcorrection. Lag indicators should rarely be considered as a KPI as the benefit of KPI is to adjust processes and behavior to get better performance.

KPIs of the leading type are predictive of desired results at the next higher level. An example of such a leading indicator for market share is customer satisfaction with the organization's products and service. The primary difficulty with leading KPIs is to be sure that they are strongly correlated with the required corporate goals; modeling and understanding of key business drivers is necessary.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MINUTES

Thursday, August 19, 2010

CTO: 3:14 p.m.

I. QUORUM VERIFICATION:

Present: Benny Boveda, Bryan VanHuystee, Mark Novak, Steve Preminger. Rashad Said arrived at 3:30 p.m.

Absent: Joe Flynn.

II. OPENING REMARKS: Read by Executive Committee Chair Benny Boveda.

III. CONSENT ITEMS

Upon motion by Committee Member Steve Preminger, seconded by Committee Member Bryan VanHuystee and unanimously approved, the consent items below were accepted.

- (a) July American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (ARRA)/Integration Report of August 10, 2010.
- (b) June CQI Dashboard Report of July 9, 2010.
- (c) Grant Report of August 9, 2010.

IV. AGENDA ITEMS

A. Old Business

1. Minutes Approval

Upon motion by Committee Member Mark Novak, seconded by Steve Preminger, and passed unanimously, the July 29, 2010 work2future Executive Committee Minutes were approved.

B. New Business

1. Committee Updates

No committee meetings were held since the last committee meeting; therefore, there were no reports from committees.

2. Labor Market Information Update

Economic and workforce development consultant Aaron Wilcher addressed the issue of local underemployment, describing employee underutilization in terms of individuals unhappy with short-term and contract employment positions. He mentioned that objective statistics, surveys from impacted individuals, and focus group studies are his methodologies for gathering information, and reported that the surveys are being finalized and the focus group meetings are being scheduled. The preliminary report should be available at the Board Retreat and the final report will be mid to late October.

In response to Chair Benny Boveda's question regarding what work2future hopes to achieve with the study, management indicated that this information will be used to ascertain which programs would best address the needs of this population. For example, individuals who hold several part-time, low-paying jobs in order to pay the bills could benefit from workshops that entertain practical solutions for this specific group.

The Executive Director added that lower-skilled individuals who do not recognize their transferable skills could benefit from this study. The information can be used to determine how we counsel individuals about the current job market and guide the spending of our resources to best serve our clients. Trainings might include upgrades to clients' skills that are complementary to their current skills, thus creating the highest impact for the client. Employers could be counseled to develop positions in their companies to capitalize on the skills of their employees.

Steve Preminger requested that staff present more practical scenarios using the information from this study at the retreat.

Business Services Manager BJ Sims addressed the small businesses study. BBC, the selected consultant firm, has almost completed the data review, is on target with data collection for the entrepreneur and small business owner surveys, and is working on the appendices. Upon completion of the study, expected by August 30, 2010, formal recommendations and a report will be submitted.

Benny Boveda asked what common issues were surfacing. Ms. Sims responded that licensing and permitting seemed to be a problem across San Jose and surrounding cities. Restaurants and food service figure prominently as new businesses; it is much easier to take over or purchase existing permits than it is to spend twice as much time getting new ones.

Steve Preminger commented that this has been a problem historically and wondered why the process had not been streamlined. The Executive Director mentioned that the permit department has a customer satisfaction system in place, much like our Continuous Quality Improvement (CQI) program. Their customer satisfaction rating is high, although has been impacted by recent layoffs. The Chief Economic Development Officer's role is to monitor these procedures and understand how they might impact the attractiveness of San Jose for new businesses. Some 10%-15% of customers express dissatisfaction with the permit process.

Benny Boveda commented that, in his experience, permitting has always been challenging. Part of the issue involves timely inspections, because without them, construction is interrupted and slow. Further, he said that the inspectors are meticulous and observant of detail. Steve Preminger asked if this is particular to San Jose, or whether other cities are similarly impacted. Benny Boveda answered that San Jose is the city he works with the most.

Ms. Sims added that San Jose is providing the safest and greenest construction possible, which requires a high level of detail.

Ms. Sims also addressed the Rapid Response best practices study. She shared that the Rapid Response program is not well known or defined. Part of the focus of the study is to let the public know about its existence, and also to establish an early warning system to identify potentially troubled sectors. The kind of information required to do this is being identified. An early warning system would provide an alternate plan to showing up after businesses have implemented layoffs.

The Dunn and Bradstreet information that is currently the basis of work2future's data is part of the plan to identify businesses that are in trouble. When a business's rating falls below an identified level, a flag is raised, providing Business Services the opportunity to look at the business/industry. BBC has identified Econovue as a site to house the Rapid Response early warning system.

Javier Vanga, Special Projects, presented information on a new Clean and Green Emerging Industries study to be performed by BW Research's consultant Josh Williams. The study will define clean and green and how these terms apply to business and to the workforce in Silicon Valley, and will also investigate (1) which clean-tech companies are receiving venture capital investments, and (2) where they are in the production process as it may relate to employment opportunities.

work2future is interested in real-time information and plans to review data on a monthly basis. As the information is received, timely action will have maximum impact. Further, the study will reveal what jobs are available in what industries and the relationship between skills and occupations within those industries. Both long-term (over a five-year period) job growth and short-term job growth will be studied. Emerging industries require different skills from those used in the present workforce. The challenge is to find out what the emerging industries are and what skills they require in order to provide appropriate training for our workforce.

Benny Boveda asked how we might prepare upcoming students for these emerging industries. Mr. Vanga replied that the problem covers all grades, from kindergarten through high school. The Executive Director added that this is an issue for post-secondary students as well as for the economic development of our city. San Jose has historically imported talent from outside the city. Going forward, the City will depend upon the sons and daughters of immigrants who have been educated through the public school system. The gap between what they know and what they need to know, and the skills they will require for employment in emerging industries, are pressing concerns.

Committee member Rashad Said added that there is a "green training frenzy" happening right now; individuals are being trained and receiving certifications in programs without knowing what will follow afterwards, such as what kind of additional training may be required, what additional fees must be incurred to maintain the certification, or for what kinds of jobs they will be qualified.

The high tech studies will identify "niche" industries in high tech or "convergent" industries that use two sets of skills to create new products (e.g., Health Care and Information Technology). work2future anticipates that researching these new jobs and respective skills will further promote workforce growth.

3. work2future's 5-Year Business Model

The Executive Director informed the committee that the job recovery is slow, and that the apparent drop in unemployment numbers may be deceiving. Some individuals are deciding not to continue looking for work and/or have run out of unemployment benefits; a few may have found jobs.

The Executive Director reported that, despite the current economic situation, allocations will most likely decline in the next couple of years; therefore, the five-year business model will be based on the assumption of little job creation for the next two years. This is an opportune moment, he said, for a call to action – time to utilize all resources available, including the Board and the clients whom work2future serves. Secondly, he stated that work2future is asking its Board to empower and support us through organizational changes so that services can be maximized. Guiding principles will remain generally the same, with emphasis on compliance with WIA regulations that must be supported by MIS, Fiscal, and Contracts. Changing our targeted impact will be a good discussion at the retreat.

The first page of the current business parameters spreadsheet is built around how many hours it takes to provide services to the number of clients we have. The Executive Director explained that there are approximately 7,000 clients, each requiring an average of 16 hours of staff time for services, which translates into 52 staff. If operations were to continue as they are today, a $14M deficit is projected by the year 2015,

The largest impact is the number of clients enrolled. Currently, we are serving individuals from other service areas, which is an issue that must be addressed. Steve Preminger asked if denying services to out-of-area individuals is allowable. Clarification was provided that we are only required to have open enrollment for our workforce investment area. The Executive Director then demonstrated that the second largest area of impact is service hours, saying that if the total number of hours per client is cut to 13 hours, it cuts the deficit in half. He suggested that work2future consider cutting services that are low value, or use technology to reduce staff time per client.

Dr. Novak pointed out that the largest reduction could be to staffing, and wondered whether staff reduction was a possibility. The Executive Director responded that it would be a tough decision but needs to be entertained. Of the 52 staff listed, 10 might be assigned to the administrative budget. The remaining 42 staff includes both permanent City staff and contracted staff dedicated to service delivery. Benny Boveda pointed out the Board needs to decide what is truly needed and what is merely wanted. Regarding return and impact, the Executive Director referred to job fairs and grant writing as high cost items with indefinite or unknown return, and said that although CQI is a highly valued area, the way it is operated is labor intensive and costly. However, work2future's approach to CQI could be modified.

Future steps for the five-year business plan are: focus groups in early September; the September 23, 2010 Board Retreat; follow-up focus groups and a skeletal business plan in October; a draft business plan for the November Executive Committee; and a final draft business plan for the December Board Meeting.

Benny Boveda commented there may be services or allocations that cannot be provided; we cannot be everything to everyone. Steve Preminger expressed concern that if we become too technology-based, we will leave behind those covered in our core mission – those hardest to serve, who are less sophisticated when it comes to technology. Benny Boveda suggested targeting those most in need, and Steve Preminger offered that a blend of approaches would be necessary in light of operational concerns.

Dr. Novak commended the Executive Director on the amount of thought put into the presentation to the Board. It was clear, simple, and moving toward solutions. Then he asked where the Board comes in. The Executive Director responded that the Board has a lot to offer in terms of creativity and innovation – areas that work2future would like to tap. The Assistant Director advised that materials would be sent out to the Board advising them of the tasks ahead. Rashad Said affirmed that this call to action would turn work2future's Board into a working board.

4. work2future Board Retreat

The committee will discuss the upcoming work2future Board of Directors' Retreat. There will still be some time needed in the beginning of the meeting to approve action items. Staff anticipates sending out one-page summaries of the labor market reports as part of the agenda packet.

5. BusinessOwnerSpace.com Update

Business Services Manager BJ Sims showed the committee a copy of the home page of the existing website. She reported that a group of evaluators had been convened, ranging from experienced web designers to individuals who have no familiarity with our website, to provide input regarding the content and ease of use of the current website. Some of the comments and suggestions were: the search function, "JUST ASK BOS," should be enhanced and more noticeable; Vietnamese and Spanish translation links should be more prominent, with larger font; the BOS tag line "Start, Grow, Sustain" should be used to organize links and facilitate navigation; pages should be printer-friendly; BOS should be linked to federal and local grant opportunities; and the site should provide an on-line library, a virtual job fair, and a "share this page" function.

Retreat Purposes (as stated on the agenda)

- To use the anticipated reductions in federal funding to radically rethink our business model.
- To ensure that the new business model provides a sustainable foundation for achieving a high impact, high performance organization.
- To develop bold and tangible action items in the areas of resource enhancements, productive partnerships, leveraged technologies and entrepreneurial impact.
- To enlist Board members in helping to advance the action items by utilizing their skills sets, experiences, networks and resources.

Format

Board members were given the option of participating in one of four discussion groups, each with a designated topic. Each group was assigned a Board member "champion" who was responsible for guiding the discussion and helping the group select one or two ideas to pursue. w2f staff served as scribes and resources for the groups. The topics and Board member champions were:

1. Leveraged Technologies – Jorge Zavala
2. Resource Enhancements – Susan Keopp-Baker
3. Productive Partnerships – Mark Novak
4. Entrepreneurial Impact – Joe Flynn

Each group reported the results of their discussion in a large group format, followed by an open conversation about the ideas that were generated and the next steps that should be taken. These points were graphically recorded on large sheets of paper. Pictures of these graphic recordings are included here with the summary notes.

The topics were purposefully designed to focus on increasing assets and enhancing funding rather than reducing costs. Staff will present service delivery reductions and other cost cutting scenarios to the Executive Committee in October and to the full Board in December.

Leveraged Technologies Group Report (Jorge Zavala, Board Champion)

The group focused on two key ideas:

1. Social Networking
 - Extend reach and contact
 - New customers and training

2. Corporate Sponsorships

- Improve service delivery via e-services. Example of geo mapper
- Build relationships: Inform sponsors about w2f; elicit kind resources and/or money.

For the short-term, the group recommends using existing technology instead of investing in new technologies.

See graphic recording for additional points on Leveraged Technologies.

Resource Enhancements Group Report (Susan Keopp-Baker, Board Champion)

Obtaining 501(c)3 designation is critical for resource enhancements. Additionally, the group focused on two key ideas:

1. Re-Evaluate and Streamline

- Contracts for training. Assess for relevancy and consider re-engineering to take advantage of technology (distance learning) and extend the reach of w2f.
- Partner for trainings; consider larger class sizes.

2. Revenue Generation

- Special projects (geo mapper, BOS)
- Fee 4 service
- Customized trainings
- In-kind from employers

Also, Board members need marketing tools: Buttons, marketing packet, video, 30-second elevator speech.

See graphic recording for additional points on Resource Enhancements.

Productive Partnerships Group Report (Mark Novak, Board Champion)

The group organized potential partners into two categories:

1. Job Seekers

- Adult education providers (Literacy, High School diploma, G.E.D. and vocational)
- CBOs – community-based organizations
- SJSU College of Business student interns

2. Business

- Business associations: Silicon Valley Leadership Group (SVLG); Chambers of Commerce leadership groups: Downtown Rotary Club.

Other items discussed:

- What are partnering for? What is "the ask"? What is in it for them?
- Need to know specifically what w2f does; don't speak in generalities
- Can target "the ask" around specific projects/tasks
- Reach out to individual businesses separately, and/or bring businesses and community groups together in one event

See graphic recording for additional points on Productive Partnerships.

Entrepreneurial Impact Group Report (Joe Flynn, Board Champion)

The group generated three idea categories:

1. Multi-level business incubator
 - Developing a business plan
 - Ongoing group to help incubate business ideas
 - Geo mapper is a good example
2. Grant Writing Incubator
 - Help others as the fiscal agent
 - Charge fee for grant writing services
3. w2f provides services for fees
 - 501(c)3 forms the foundation
 - Social enterprises; ways to generate income above costs
 - Unique value: Human dimension; high touch (BOS website)

See graphic recording for additional points on Entrepreneurial Impact..

Next Steps

In the large group, Board members responded to the group reports, identified commonalities, and used these comments to formulate a plan for next steps, which consists primarily of three "working groups." See graphic recording for additional next steps.

- Business Incubator/Fee for Service Working Group: Rocky Maddex will lead a working group to explore the business incubator idea generated by the Entrepreneurial Impact discussion group, including the possibilities for developing fee for services activities. BJ Sims will lead staff support for the group, assisted by Richard Martinez.
- Technology Working Group: Jorge Zavala will lead a working group to explore technology opportunities, which will include assisting Cisco in a technology audit of w2f. Among the issues the group will explore are: The need to leverage technology as a robust resource; using technology for streamlining and process improvements; and using technology for staff research and information gathering. Lawrence Thoo will lead staff support for the group, assisted by Monique Melchor and Fran Vader.
- Marketing Materials/501(c)3 Working Group: Mark Novak will lead a working group to develop marketing materials for Board members to use in developing partnerships for w2f. The group will also assist in ensuring that steps to develop the 501(c)3 entity move forward and are completed. One of the goals of the working group is to meet with the Dean of the Business School at San José State University to initiate a program to use student interns in developing marketing materials. Javier Vanga will lead staff support form the group, assisted by Lawrence Thoo.
